About the Delhi Law Review (Student Edition)

The Delhi Law Review (DLR) [ISSN 097-4936] is the flagship Journal of the Faculty of Law, University of Delhi and is one of the oldest journals in the country having been published since 1972. The DLR is an annual, double-blind peer-reviewed Journal. As of 2020, the Journal has been made available as a digital publication accessible on the Faculty of Law website here: http://lawfaculty.du.ac.in/Delhi_Law_Review.html.

Editorial Board Selection Process

In addition to the Faculty Editorial Board, a Student Editorial Board is being created to engage the highly motivated and competitive students in the editing process. Delhi Law Review will be accepting applications for its Student Editorial Board for the academic session 2020-21. Applications are open to all current LL.B./LL.M. Students of the three Centres of the Faculty of Law, University of Delhi, i.e. Campus Law Centre, Law Centre-I and Law Centre-II. The last date for registration is 17 October 2020 (Saturday) at 11:59 PM.

The Student Editorial Board shall carry forward the culture of engaging with premium quality research work and upholding high standards of editorial methodology.

Please use the link for registration: <https://forms.gle/VWooDkfZmrYYpoM16>

After the registration process, an email detailing a three-step screening procedure for selecting the editors will be sent to the candidates who successfully register within the aforementioned deadline.
